TBC/NAME: Verbal welcome (scripted), introductions/Terms of Participation

Hello everyone, and welcome to Writing the Feminist Internet.
Please Mute yourself on Jitsi, mute your computer if you don't want to hear background conversation, we'd like to acknowledge that we are participating in this event and pay our respects to ghosts hosts and ghosts – ancestors past, present and emerging. The space the server sits on, and the spaces we are all occupying are in themselves colonised, written, programmed and ruled by dominant others. My co-facilitators today, name {waves}, name {waves} I'm name {waves} etc.

HDSA2020 NAME A warm welcome to you, our collaborators. If you haven't used Jitsi before, please mute yourself when you're not speaking to the group. You can do this by clicking on the microphone symbol at the bottom of the screen, just to the left of centre.] Thank you all for being here today. We have 2 hours together, and we hope you can stay with us to see this experiment. Make sure you have snacks and water :) Before we start writing together, I want to explain briefly what we'll be doing, why, and how, and lay down a few guidelines to keep things flowing, but also open to the realms of chaos.

What?

Intro collaborative writing

You will be in a multiple-author writing pad, Etherpad – a tool for public collaboration. You need to be using Firefox or Chrome otherwise some features of this platform won't work for you.

This is a 2-hour collaborative writing session – together we will overwrite, delete edit, correct, challenge, echo, duplicate, expand, solidify, summarise, nuance, incant...a very early draft of 10 working points for the 21C for WRITING THE FEMINIST INTERNET, whilst carving out online space away from tech bros, doxxers and patriarchal systems, and towards skill sharing, fluidity and multiplicity. We are working from the position of an open feminism that embraces multiplicity, diversity, gender-bending, queerness, unfixed-ness, becoming, transforming, shifting, making space for underrepresented voices, and not privileging our voices in relation to others.

What we are doing today in the most basic sense, is working in a document together. We want you to help us deconstruct, or build upon, or challenge, or add to a working document. There will also be the opportunity for discussion throughout. The text we are working with a text that contains 10 working points are propositions to seed the grounds for performative explorations into diverse *feminist traditions of knowledge production. These working points have been drafted with feedback from many collaborators along the way, and we are expanding that even further today, with all of you.

Why?

We are trying to carve out online space that is fluid and disobedient. To learn together through trying, failing, getting frustrated, drinking tea, talking, trying again. Using – or skirting around – online tools and tactics of control and shaping them to our own ends. And eventually, using these tools to make space for other kinds of stories that need to be heard.

How?

Please note the chat icon at the bottom left of your screen – the little speech bubble icon.

We are now sharing two links in the chat –

2)The writing together will take place on an Etherpad – we are sharing the link now

[NAME] The Jitsi chat is not being streamed or recorded, but our main Etherpad workspace will be livestreamed by HDSA2020 and archived by Despoinas Media Coven for anyone to view. We will also be screen recording the Etherpad – what you all type and delete – as an archival document of how we are spending the next 2 hours. You can choose to remain anonymous in this and we will explain how once we're in there together.

OR a How To will be here for late comers – https://miss-hack.org/ether/p/Code\_Terms\_of\_Participation\_WTFI-15\_06\_02020

[NAME] We will be using Jitsi for intermittent discussion, if you desire that keep this tab open, with your mic muted your welcome to check in. [NAME] also be listening out for any questions that come up that need to be talked over in voice rather than in the Etherpad itself. If there's chatter on Jitsi and you find it distracting, you can just hang out on Etherpad and mute your computer speakers.

Now you're welcome jump into the Etherpad which has been linked in the chat: <https://www.miss-hack.org/ether/p/>

Thank you so much for being here! We can't wait to play and push this together, test ideas out, challenge one another and create some chaos in a *feminist corner of the internet. [bit more*]
